The Benefits of Single Sex Education

Academic Achievement

Girls from girls' schools achieve higher grades at both GCSE and A-level compared to girls in co-educational (mixed) schools. Single sex schools for girls dominate the top of the exam results league tables. Research shows that in co-ed schools boys receive more attention from teachers, to the detriment of girls.

Maturity

Girls and boys mature at different rates. So, when it comes to learning, it makes sense to give each what they need in order for them to flourish. Your daughter can benefit from being in a school that recognises these differences and provide an education geared specifically to her needs and developmental stage.

Confidence

Girls acquire higher self-esteem and greater self-confidence at a girls' school. Helping girls feel good about themselves and encouraging them to have faith in their capacity to face challenges is hugely important. With only their fellow girls in the classroom or on the sports field, girls in single sex schools have the space in which their intellectual and physical confidence can blossom. There is a tremendous freedom to be – and become – themselves and to fully explore all the education opportunities available to them. Girls' schools also create opportunities for appropriate educational risk-taking.

Greater Opportunities

In single sex schools, girls don't just enjoy equal opportunities, they enjoy ALL opportunities, whether it be in the arts, sport, science, expeditions, careers insights or other extra-curricular activities. We believe there should be no limitations on your daughter's ambitions, professional and personal.

Tomorrow's Leaders

Girls' schools help their students to develop broad horizons, offering strong female role models and provide high expectations. As leaders students are helped to develop themselves and their leadership skills. Building their leadership skills and giving them positive female role models to look up to is also an important way in which girls can be encouraged to have faith in what women can do, and so what they can do.
